Track.

JOE MATSON WINS
Crown Point, Ind., June 18.—Joe Matson in a Chalmers-Detroit car, driving a perfect race, today won the Indiana trophy for light automobiles, going 233.34 miles in 4:31:21, an average of 51.2 miles an hour. Robertson finished second in a Locomobile. Matson was third in a Marmon car.

Chicago, June 18.—In the light car and stock car races for the Indiana and Coke trophies to be held on the Lowell-Crown Point course here today and Saturday, the west has its first chance at a really national automobile race on the line of the Locomobile and Vanderbilt cup races. Entered in the event are some of the foremost drivers of the country, with records for the most fearless driving for the richest prizes of the automobile world.

The course is through the state of Indiana, and special arrangements have been made for the policing of the course. By an arrangement between the states of Indiana and Illinois, the state of Indiana will have the course under martial law during the time of the races.

Special trains took thousands to the scene of the great races while autoists within striking distance came in their own cars, driving to the course just outside this city. It is estimated that 300,000 saw the events today. Every hotel and house at which rooms could be secured in Lowell and Crown Point let out all their available space long ago. The entire course has been encircled by a wire fence and Thursday the course was tar sprinkled and swept for the events.

Drivers who have been tuning up their cars and testing the course for more than a week past differ in their opinions as to what marks will be made over the route. The course is 23.0 miles in length and must be covered to finish. Strang has made the best time to date, a circuit in 21 minutes. The greatest feature of the whole course is one eight-mile straightaway, known as the east leg. It is estimated that speeds of 80 miles an hour will be made on this stretch. The dip of the road is a sharp turn, is the most dangerous part of the course. It is here that the drivers are in the greatest danger.

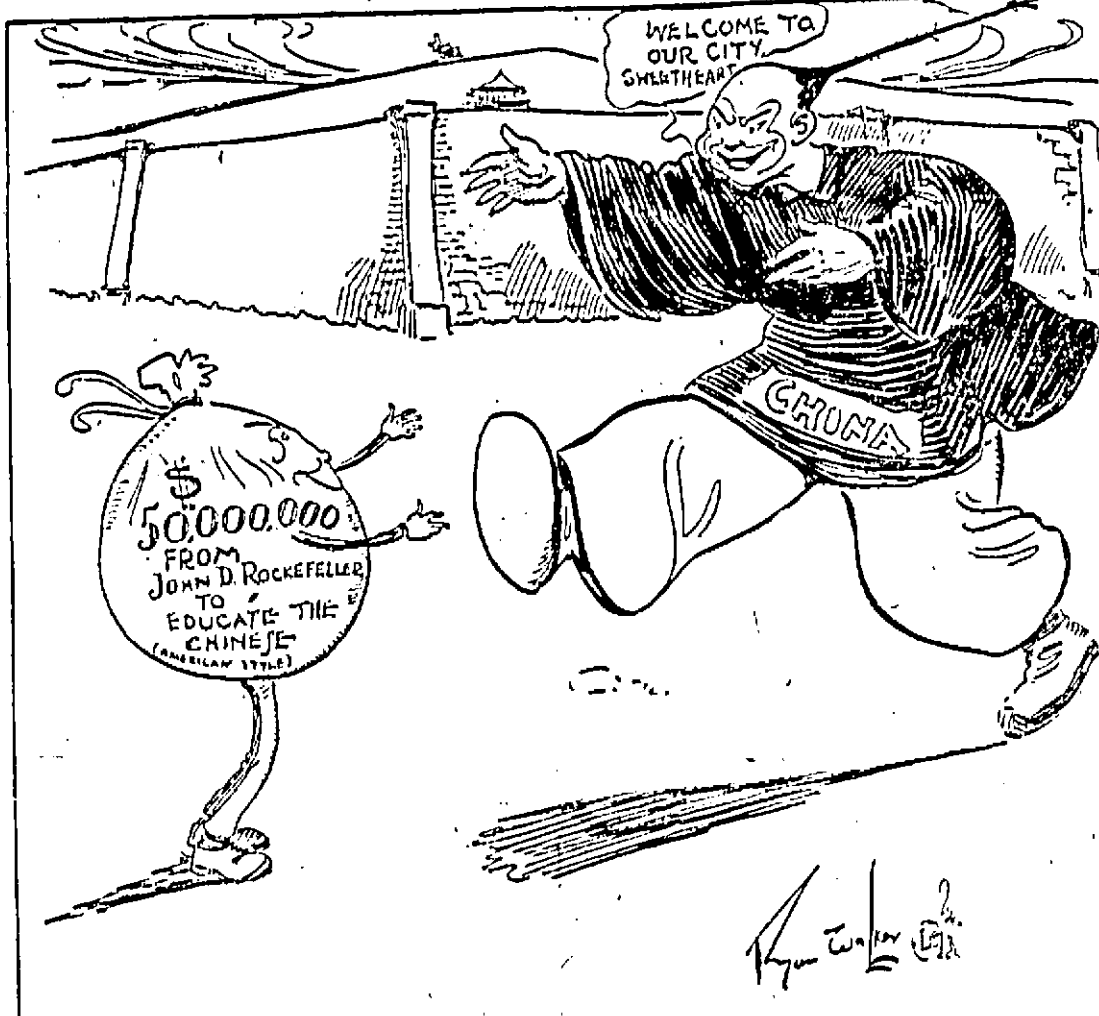

William J. Wagner, starter of the Vanderbilt cup race and of the Savannah road race, will send the autos on their mad dash. Like many another veteran follower of the thrilling mile-a-minute sport, Starter Wagner felt it his duty to carefully go over the course before making predictions on the probable average time that will be made.

BIG DEMONSTRATION
FOR WRIGHTS TODAYToday's Celebration For Aeronauts in Dayton Was Grandest Ever Seen in That City.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Dayton, O., June 18.—"The Wright Brothers' Home Celebration" culminated today in a blaze of glory. Through streets thronged with cheering thousands, the famous aviators rode this afternoon in one of the greatest parades this city has ever witnessed. Enthusiasm was the keynote of the monster demonstration. With waving flags, and colors flashing everywhere, the two Daytonians who brought such high honors back with them from across the seas, were given an ovation that surpassed even the promoters of the affair.

In the great parade the state of Ohio was represented by her governor and other high officials and by two regiments of national guardsmen, while the city showed its official favor not only in declaring the day a public holiday, but in decorating the city buildings from flag to roof with the national colors and banners bearing inscriptions appropriate to the occasion. In addition to the soldiers the parade included many civic organizations and children of the public schools.

The procession was viewed by the Wright brothers from a large reviewing stand in the downtown section. Occupying seats with them were their sister, Miss Katherine Wright, their father, Bishop Wright, and their brother, Laurin Wright, who is engaged with them in the manufacture of their aeroplanes. Representatives of the state and city, members of the Aero Club of America and a number of other invited guests also occupied seats on the stand.

Earlier in the day Wilbur and Orville Wright had been presented with the medals, one voted by an act of Congress and the other by the Ohio legislature. The presentations took place at the county fair grounds where many thousands of persons gathered to witness the exercises. Presentation speeches were made by Governor Harmon of Ohio and Mayor Harkard of Dayton.

The several features of the day's program were witnessed by thousands of visitors who flocked into the city from far and near to join with the citizens of Dayton in doing honor to the famous young inventors of the aeroplanes. Every appearance of the Wright brothers in public was greeted with enthusiastic cheers. The warmth of the demonstration for once penetrated the natural reserve of the noted aviators and their smiling faces plainly indicated full appreciation on their part.

"UNCLE IKE" IS THE OLDEST OF SENATORSMillionaire Lumberman-Senator, Richest Man in Upper House, Reaches Age of Eighty.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Washington, D. C., June 18.—Senator Isaac Stephenson of Wisconsin was eighty years old today, though he might easily be mistaken for a man of sixty. He is as vigorous as many of his younger colleagues in the senate and few have taken a more prominent part than he in the recent tariff debates.

The Wisconsin senator has the distinction of being the oldest member of the upper house. He is five months the senior of Senator Cullom of Illinois, who will reach his eightieth birthday next November.

Mr. Stephenson is not only the oldest member of the senate, but it is likely also that he is the wealthiest member of that body. He has a fortune estimated at from $10,000,000 to $15,000,000, the bulk of it made in the lumber business in Wisconsin. When he went to the badger state, he was only sixteen years old and he was one of the first to plough his soil.

The first year he was in Wisconsin Mr. Stephenson broke 130 acres of land near Janesville and helped put in 400 acres of wheat. During the summers he sailed vessels on the lakes, carrying freight between Chicago and Racine. In the winters he worked in the lumber camps, and, being a good judge of the value of timber, was able to locate for himself and associates hundreds of thousands of acres in northern Wisconsin and Michigan, which in a comparatively short time made them all millionaires.

Senator Stephenson has led a strenuous life, but he still has had leisure to engage in politics and has been a sturdy republican since 1850, when he needed Fremont and Dayton tickets on the courthouse steps in Chicago. Few men have had a more intimate acquaintance with public affairs or have enjoyed the confidence of more public men than he.

EXTRA SESSION'S
LABORS PLANNEDEIGHTY BILLS AND ONE JOINT RESOLUTION NOT HANDLED
AT THIS TIME.

MANY BILLS LAID OVER

This Means That the Coming Extra Session Will Have Plenty to Do to Keep Them Busy.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., June 18.—Just eighty bills and one joint resolution were laid over by the past legislative session for action at the special session to be held next January, but so important is the legislation which has been scheduled for action next winter that Assemblyman L. W. Lodvina, chairman of the assembly committee on judiciary, yesterday gave it as his opinion that the special session would likely last three or four months. The special committee work will begin very soon. Senator Sanborn, after discussing the question of when the industrial insurance committee would meet, decided to call that committee for its first formal meeting on either June 28 or July 6.

From that time on until the industrial insurance bill, to be presented to the special session, is completed, it is expected that the committee will meet pretty steadily. Senator Owen will call a meeting of the committee on insurance of bank deposits for the second week in August and he hopes that that committee can finish its work and be ready to report by October 1. Senator Bird has not yet decided when he will call a meeting of the water power committee, but it will likely occur early in August or late in July.

The industrial insurance committee will not attempt to take up the other subjects with which it has to deal, that of negligence legislation, until after it has disposed of the industrial insurance question. In this the committee is acting wisely, as until the character of the industrial insurance legislation is decided upon it would be practically impossible to say what should be done with the negligence bills. It is also the understanding among the members of the committee on waterpower franchises not to take up the preparation of a new drainage code until after the question of the taxation of waterpower franchises is disposed of.

As has been said before, in this paper, neither the joint investigating committee nor the senate investigating committee, which will prepare the corrupt practices bill for the special session, will try to meet before something in the fall. The senate committee intends hearing some more testimony, but the joint committee will meet only to formulate legislation upon the subjects of cleaner primaries and elections.

It is also likely that the educational committee, which has the subject of legislation in regard to the government and inspection of the school system and the state to deal with, will not meet until some time in the fall. The committee which has in charge legislation on state aid for road building will probably begin sitting in September, as several members of this committee are farmers who do not desire to return to Madison until after their summer work at home is completed.

The assembly committee named include two Rock county members—C. Whitely, on banks, and Grant U. Fisher, on investigation. The remainder of the assembly committees named are as follows:

Industrial insurance—M. J. Clardy, LaFayette, chairman; Wallace Ingalls, Racine; C. H. Cullback, Chippewa; Walter Egan, Delafield; Income tax—J. E. McConell, Milwaukee, chairman; J. E. McConell, La Crosse; Charles A. Ingram, Pepin; J. S. Towser, Columbia.

Good roads—John H. Jones, Monroe, chairman; C. C. Wellensgard, Green Lake; J. A. Chalmock, St. Croix; Ole A. Budelt, Waupaca.

Water power and dams—William M. Bray, Winnebago, chairman; George P. Hambricht, Wood; F. W. Kubasta, Lincoln; J. E. Thomas, Waukesha.

Banks—L. C. Whitely, Rock, chairman; Platt Whitman, Iowa; O. A. Crowell, Portage; William Reader, Langlade.

Education—E. W. Laffoy, Marinette, chairman; John C. Chapple, Ashland; S. F. Wehrwein, Manitowish; E. E. Haight, Columbia (assembly committee).

Investigation (assembly committee)—W. L. Lodvina, Manitowish, chairman; A. T. Twiss, Trempealeau; Grant U. Fisher, Rock; John F. Hughes, Dodge; Frank Hamill, Washburn.

The Wisconsin legislature of 1909, memorable for its incomplete investigation of senatorial campaign expenditures, adjourned, sine die this noon.

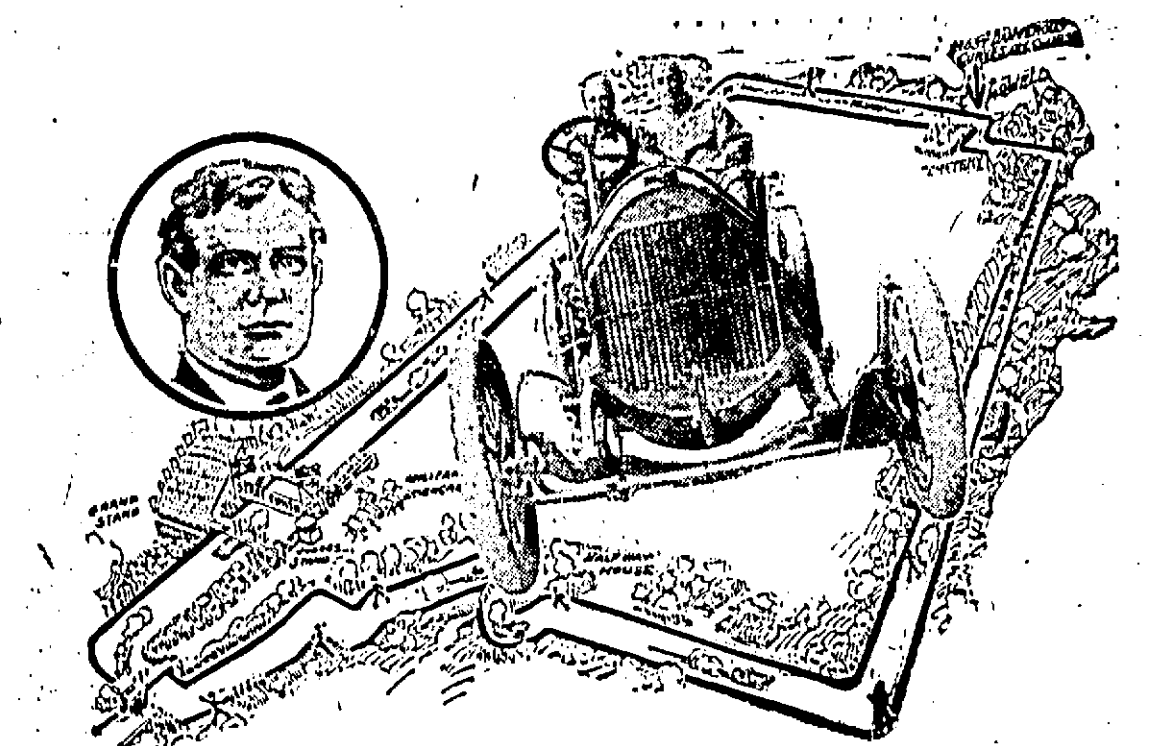

Governor Davidson vetoed five bills, the most important being that to establish a teachers' pension and retirement fund. The veto is based on the governor's opposition to a state appropriation of $80,000 to the fund and to the state paying the expense of the board of directors and administration.

Senator Sanborn and a large delegation of school "mums" pleaded with the governor this morning to sign the bill, but without avail.

by the drivers in both the light car and heavy car events. Yesterday the best and most realistic spinning made on the Indiana course—if not the nearest approach to Vanderbilt cup racing the west has ever known—gave a lot of incidental and voluntary racing in the press stand opposite the big grand stand plenty of opportunity to figure on the work of the best known "speed devils."

A special signal service had been arranged for the drivers. Immense billboards have been built on the turns, and as the drivers slow down their mechanisms can have one swift look to see just what lap they are on and how far ahead and behind the preceding and following cars are.

Promptly at 5 o'clock Starter Wagner sent the car off in the initial "western Vanderbilt" automobile race for the Indiana trophy. The weather and track were nearly perfect. The distance traveled by the cars was 232.71 miles, divided into ten laps.

Chicago will sing at the dinner, at which covers will be laid for 500.

White, Watertown, "Security for Industrial Peace." President Charles R. Van Hise will deliver the address to the graduating class, his subject being "The New Nationalism."

An orchestra concert by Bach's symphony orchestra, Milwaukee, will be given Wednesday afternoon in the armory. ## SENIORS RECEIVE THEIR DIPLOMAS

AT THE EXERCISES AT THE HIGH SCHOOL LAST EVENING.

FORTY-SEVEN IN THE CLASS

Of 1909 Who Have Successfully Completed Course Were Graduated From the School.

Forty-seven pupils, successful in completing their four year course at the high school last evening received their diplomas at the Graduation Night exercises. The presentation was made at the close of a most interesting program, given by members of the graduating class, by Dr. S. B. Duckmaster, president of the Board of Education. Loud applause and hearty cheers were given by the audience as the various members of the class their respective speeches.

Dr. Duckmaster's Talk.

A short speech was made by Dr. Duckmaster to the graduates emphasizing the fact that although their high school career had ended there are many things for them yet to do. "Good citizenship," said the doctor, "is more necessary than good scholarship. Make good citizens of yourselves and to your school. As you go out into the world you will be given various tasks to perform."

Gives Advice.

"Man does not live for himself alone, but to help others. Remember that whatever duties are laid on your shoulders you have the additional duty of being useful to others."

"Liberty is a great thing, but conscience is greater than liberty. Therefore cultivate conscience."

"In behalf of the Board of Education and the people of the City of Janesville, I extend to you your sincerest congratulations."

The young ladies and young men who were last evening graduated were:

Opening Program.

The opening number of the program was a musical selection, "The Blue Jacket," rendered by the orchestra under the able direction of Mr. F. F. Lewis.

Rev. John McKinney of Christ Episcopal church acted as chaplain with a petition to the Almighty One.

Retribution.

The certainty of a Nemesis and of retribution were the principal points brought out by Miss Evelyn A. Frost in her characterization of Lord and Lady Macbeth. She told of the events leading up to the murder of Banquo by Macbeth, quoting from the play and then went on to show how sin followed sin until retribution set in, causing the death of Lady Macbeth and the downfall and destruction of Lord Macbeth. Ambition was the sin of which these were guilty.

Kipling's Work.

Kipling's appreciation of Tommy Atkins, according to Miss Dolly Donnelly, was shown by the lifelike portrayals of the character, life, work and play of the British soldier in the prose and poetry of the English writer. Kipling knew what the life of a soldier in the British Army was and he has drawn very clever pen pictures of the hardships and joys, the joys and the pleasures of Tommy Atkins.

"The Daffodils."

The time, the place and the incentive for Wordsworth's poem, "The Daffodils," were set forth by Miss Helen F. Dullin and various passages of exquisite beauty of thought were pointed out. Miss Dullin gave a splendid reading of the poem.

Robertson's Sonata.

Opus 3 was given an excellent violin rendition by M. Donna McKinney. Miss Anna Lewis acted as piano accompanist.

Great Women Series.

The next three numbers of the entertainment were a series of essays dealing with the lives of great women. The first, by Miss Ellen Auld, whose subject was "A Great Teacher," was an eulogy of the work and accomplishments of Alice Freeman. A sketch of her life was given and the reasons for her success along educational lines set down as being due to her sympathy, kindness and, because she gave so much of herself to everyone, she was an inspiration and a help.

Frances E. Willard.

Frances E. Willard, as one of the great women, and the only one whose statue stands in the "Hall of Fame" at Washington, was taken up by Miss Nora J. Marshall. The events of Miss Willard's early life and education and her own efforts in the educational field were spoken of. The system of self-government as a form of discipline for students was originated by Miss Willard. Then her labors for the cause of temperance and reform were dealt with. Miss Willard's last public address was given before a Janesville audience in the Congregational church in the year 1888.

Great Women.

"A comparison of the women of the nineteenth century with those of the eighteenth reveals in the former a marked advance along many lines," said Miss Agnes Smith in speaking of "Great Women of the Nineteenth Century." "The eighteenth century woman was vain and frivolous, while her successor in the nineteenth had less of these qualities and had advanced in many directions, in literature, art, culture and social uplift through social and political reform. What was true of the women of the English nation was also true of the women of all countries." The three notable examples of great women selected by Miss Smith were Queen Victoria, Katherine Booth, who with her husband founded the Salvation Army; and Florence Nightingale, "The Angel of the Crimea."

"The Governor's Ball."

"The Governor's Ball," a selection from "Auntie," was read in a most superior manner by Miss Ethel Pond. The reading was accompanied with piano music.

An English translation followed by the recitation in the German language, of "Othello's Song," "Das Schloss Am Meer" (The Castle by the Sea) was the contribution of Miss Harriet E. Timpney to the program.

The Class Token.

In accordance with the custom established by former classes the class of '09 presented the school with a brass tablet bearing the Gettysburg speech of Lincoln on it, as a token of remembrance. The hundredth anniversary of Lincoln's birth occurring this year, this gift was considered particularly appropriate. Miss Mae E. McKelvey delivered the presentation address.

A musical number, "Romance," by Bonnet, was given to allow the seniors to march onto the stage and line up before the curtain was again raised and they should appear in their final numbers.

The Valedictory.

The valedictory speech was given by Miss Mabel Irene Keesey. "Life means a struggle, growth and progress. Strength and success are the results of the struggle. We have fought the battles during the past four years and have won thus far, but more struggles and a glorious victory lie before us. The great race is not finished. It is but begun. He only earns his freedom, and exists who daily meets and daily conquers anew the foes that beset him."

To the Teachers.

"To the superintendent and the teachers we offer the deepest gratitude for the encouragement we have received to go forward. To the Board of Education and the people of Janesville, we thank you for the opportunities afforded us to receive learning."

Dr. Duckmaster then gave the diplomas to the graduates, the young ladies of the class first receiving them and then stopping back to allow the young men to come forward for theirs.

The Class Song.

The final number last evening was the singing of the class song by the entire class, led by Miss Vilma Jones. The words were written by Miss Jones and were set to the music of "Don't Touch Me to Swish Alone," "Indian Love Song," "I Wonder Who's Kissing Her Now," and other song hits. Praise on various members of the class and some of the faculty, and tributes to other teachers formed the theme of the song.

Loving Service.

In loving service to the memory of their daughter, Miss Frances Lewis, who was a member of the class, Mr. and Mrs. F. F. Lewis secured the orchestra that furnished the music for Class night and Graduation night. Leo Fisher, another member of the class, whom death removed, was also remembered.

IF all-wool fabrics were the rule in men's clothes there wouldn't be so much reason for talking about being sure of getting all-wool clothes. But all-wool isn't the rule; most of the men's clothes made today are made from fabrics with cotton in them.

This is true of practically all "cheap" clothes—we use the word cheap to mean price; a suit at $10 or $12 or even $15 is pretty apt to be cotton. But even when you pay $20 or $25 you can always be sure of all-wool; because the weavers and clothing makers are certainly very skillful in the way they make cotton-mixtures look like all-wool.

The safe way, the best way, about the only sure way we know of, to get all-wool, is to get Hart Schaffner & Marx clothes. They use none but all-wool fabrics; you can depend on it every time. You'll get the tailoring and style, too. Suits $18, $20, $22.50, $25, $30.

Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul MAY MAKE CHANGES IN ROOM FOR THE OPERATOR

It has long been evident that the present quarters at the passenger station for the accommodation of the station force have been inadequate, and the plan of moving the operators' instruments to the second floor immediately above the present ticket room is being agitated. As it is now the ticket agent, station agent, car clerk and yard-master are forced to use the same room which is not overly large and contains all of them to work at a disadvantage. Should the room above the present office, now used for storing records, be made into an office with an outside stairway and a bay window, the present state of affairs would be vastly improved. The plan has long been advocated, but whether or not the company will act favorably is not known.

Fireman Seltz is on the switch-engine today with Engineer Callahan. Brakeman Walt Gregory is laying off for a few days.

Conductor Leahy is back on the Mineral Point passenger runs.

A party recently consulted me for an estimate as to the cost of certain work needed. He finally was persuaded to go to Chicago for the work.

A relative revealed to me the fact that the ultimate cost to him was three times what I asked him, besides he is in continual trouble and Chicago is a long way to go for relief.

My prices and my work are both right.

LOCAL AUTOISTS ARE INTERESTED IN LAW

Janesville Machine Owners Watch with Interest the New Ruling as to Licenses.

Janesville automobile owners will be among the eight thousand automobile owners of Wisconsin who must wait up to the Capitol's office in the second of state's office and settle as the new automobile license law was signed by Gov. Davidson last night and will be made effective by publication by Saturday.

The bill brings motorcycles as well as automobiles within its range and requires from every motorcycle owner $1 for a certificate and a license number.

It also requires new licensees to be taken out by persons buying second-hand machines, although it permits the owner of the original certificate and number plate to either return the number to the secretary of state for cancellation or to the secretary of state for a new (mark the word) machine by application to the secretary of state for authority to use the old number and paying the new fee of $2.

In addition to these provisions the act requires all owners of machines in the state to register, the old license being continued in force for ninety days to give every owner a chance to re-register, the fee of re-registration being only $1.

Manufacturers and dealers who permit the use of any garage number issued to them anywhere but the state by parties buying machines, etc., are not subject to a fine of not less than $10 nor more than $25 for each offense. It is also made the duty of manufacturers and dealers to notify the secretary of state of any change of address or firm name.

The bill was known in the assembly as the Chilton bill, No. 162A.

YEAR AND HALF IN STATE REFORMATORY

Was Sentence Meted Out to John Singer of Harvard in Municipal Court This Morning.

In municipal court this morning, John Singer of Harvard, accused of breaking into the Smith & Holtum machine shop at Clinton in the daytime and stealing a flash-light, amended his plea of "not guilty" to "guilty" and was sentenced to spend 18 months in the reformatory at Green Bay. He said he was 21 years of age and ready to take the lesson which he knew he had coming to him. The robbery occurred on the 23rd day of May and Sheriff Scheibel, working on a slender clue, located the youth at Harvard and secured the evidence necessary to convict.

OESTREICH NAMED DIVORCE COUNSEL

Will Look After Defendant's Interests in Default Cases—F. C. Burpee Court Commissioner.

Under Chapter 223 of the new Wisconsin laws it becomes the duty of the circuit judge to appoint a divorce counsel for each county of his circuit.

"Upon the recommendation of a large number of the members of the Rock county bar and because I deem him well qualified, fearless, and in every way fitted for the position," said Judge Grimm this morning, "I have appointed O. A. Oestreich to fulfill the duties of the office. I have also appointed Fred C. Burpee to succeed Mr. Oestreich as court commissioner, the latter having resigned this position yesterday."

The law's purpose is to secure closer scrutiny of the facts in default divorce actions, where one or the other of the parties makes no appearance. Only with cases of this kind in the newly created official record.

He represents the absentee and a copy of the complaint must in every instance be served on him so that he may investigate the case and be ready to report on the same to the circuit judge when it comes up for trial.

The compensation is paid by the county and is $10 for every case, unless the investigation takes longer than a single day, in which instance extra recompense is provided for.

The taking of testimony in the case of William K. Young vs. Stephen D. Grubb was concluded this morning and the attorneys agreed to submit written arguments. Judge Grimm returned to Jefferson this afternoon and will come back tomorrow to try the case of Woodruff vs. Woodruff and hear the arguments in the Walrath corollary case.

Yesterday afternoon, the partition sale case of George English vs. William J. English et al was confirmed. The judge set aside service in the case of Russell vs. Hanrahan and Lindquist was granted with $10 costs.

The motion in the case of W. T. Austin vs. the C. M. & St. P. R'y. to make the case more plain by compelling the plaintiff to elect on which count he will rely, was granted with $5 costs in each of the two cases.

Celebration Committee. The chairman of the various committees in charge of the work for the Fourth of July celebration are requested to meet Monday evening at eight o'clock at the office of the New Gas Light Co. L. F. WORTENDYKE.

CATHOLIC PICNIC
A GRAND SUCCESS

Outing Given by St. Paul's Society Attended by Large Crowds And Fun Prevailed Everywhere.

Jan. 18.—The second annual picnic and field meet given here today under the auspices of the members of St. Paul's society was in every way a complete success. The day was ideal, being neither too cool nor too warm and the multitude began early hour. Many arrived by train and hundreds came in carriages and automobiles and everybody seemed to be having a good time. The first ball game was called about ten o'clock. The two clubs, Evansville and Albany, were composed of good players, very nearly even in strength, and a fine exhibition of the national game was witnessed. The invincible Footville "White Sox" lost two games of ball. The first game, played at Albany, with Roger, star pitcher of the Chicago "Quintets" in the box, was lost to Evansville. The game was close and exciting. Groth, of the Milwaukee "White Sox" pitched for Evansville. In the afternoon the Detroit Y. M. C. A., a bunch of youngsters, defeated Footville in a thirteen inning game, 3 to 2. The game was very spectacular. The batteries for Footville were Fairman and Canary; the Detroit, Simmons and Gillman. The dinner furnished by the ladies of St. Paul's congregation proved the next attraction and a good business was done at the dining tent. About a thousand were served and the dinner was of the best. Immediately after the dinner the athletic events took place in front of the grandstand and Evansville received both the silver cup and the prize banner. The local Y. M. C. A. won the track meet from Janesville and Beloit. The Beloit team did not arrive until late and therefore they were denied the privilege of entering the first event. The following is a summary of events: 50 yd. dash—Davis, (J), 5 4/5 seconds. 100 yd. dash—Schatt, (E) 10 seconds. 220 yd. dash—Schatt, (E) 22 3/5 seconds. 440 yard dash—Mayne, (E) 55 3/5 seconds. 880 yd. run—Blankenagel, (E) 2 minutes, 23 seconds. 1 mile run—Blankenagel, (E) 5 minutes, 1 second. 120 yd. high hurdles—Wilder, (E) 16 seconds. 140 yd. low hurdles—Blightham, (E) 20 seconds. High jump—Richardson, (E) 5 ft., 4 inches. Pole vault—Wilder, (E) 8 ft. 6 in. Broad jump—Fallman, (J) 19 ft., 5 1/2 inches. Relay—Evansville, 4 mls., 8 seconds. In the horse racing, "Mark Main," driven by Mr. Conway of Edgerton, received first money. "Jonas D.," driven by Joseph Shively of Evansville, second money. "Interest," owned by Mr. Wilman of Edgerton, third; and "St. Patrick," driven by Mr. Sweeney of Portor, fourth. Time—1:12, 1:13, 1:14.

An abundant supply of excellent music was furnished all day by the Evansville band and all high noon to the end of the afternoon program passed off in a most satisfactory manner. It is estimated that there were about twenty-five hundred in attendance. The day's festivities closed with a banquet at the opera house in the evening.

On Saturday, June 12, Miss Minnie Lee and Mr. Lee Worthing took a trip to Rockford and when they returned home in the afternoon it was as husband and wife. The marriage was a complete surprise to their most intimate friends. Both are well known in this vicinity, the bride being the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lee and the groom is a promising young farmer living near Calvinville where they will make their future home. The young couple are receiving the congratulations and best wishes of their many friends.

He Talks to the Little Ones About Rain—Where the Little Drops Come From and How They Benefit the Earth.

"You want to know a whole lot, it seems to me," said Uncle Joe, half in earnest and half in fun. "But so long as even one little girl is thirsty for knowledge, I will try to tell her so she may understand."

"Rain is water divided up into little drops that get so heavy in the sky that they may no longer float on the atmosphere and necessarily fall to earth. The Chinese name for rain is 'ink and,' or 'falling water.'"

"Water is an element which may exist in many different forms. The largest beds and sheets of water are called oceans, seas and lakes. The rivers are 'ribbons'; the brooks, threads and the ponds, dots, in the fabric and pattern of Mother Earth's dress."

"Nobody has ever presumed to say whether there is more water in the air or on earth. But we know that our atmosphere which extends at least one hundred miles outward from the surface of the earth, is ever charged with water dust, which is water reduced into its smallest particles and held in suspension by the action of the sun's beams until through natural causes, such as the splitting of clouds by lightning and the sudden intruding of cold air currents, the water dust coheres into drop form and falls to earth as rain. All of which descriptive definition is too much for little girls."

"So, let us say, the sunbeams kiss the earth, and their hot breath warms the water so that it flies all into little teentwentieths bits so small they become even smaller than the little bits, or atoms, that go to make up the air we breathe. And, because they are hotter and smaller than the air atoms, they rise and sneak through the little cracks and holes of the air until they get way out into the sky, where, when the lightning rushes through or the cold air chills them they are forced together again and become drops of rain, which, because they are heavier now than the air must fall to earth."

"In this way the sun-waves, or hot kisses, and the air carry off water every day, and all day long, from the top of lakes, rivers, ponds, springs and seas, and even from the surface of ice and snow. Without any fuss or noise of any kind, the water of our earth is being drawn up invisibly into the sky."

"Remember, the water dust is always mixed all up together in the air, and we can no more see it than we can the air itself. But, when it gets up to where it is heavier than the air it comes or flows together again, packing together until it is so closely packed that we can see it in the sky in the form of clouds."

"Now, let us suppose at some point in the Atlantic ocean, where the sun kisses hardest, one of those tiny bits of water dust rises in response far into the sky. For a while it may float high in space, until after while along comes a cold current of air and forces it to mingle in with lots of other little bits until the whole mass becomes a vapory cloud which may be seen. The rushing of air is called wind, and we all know that wind blows and moves."

"Supposing, then, our bit of water dust is now a part of the cloud. The cloud itself may still be light enough to float. And it does float, and is borne on the breath of wind until lightning or more cold air forces the vapor even closer together until it forms into many little drops of water, which fall into the sea or on the land, there to stay a while and be taken up and carried again on a similar journey."

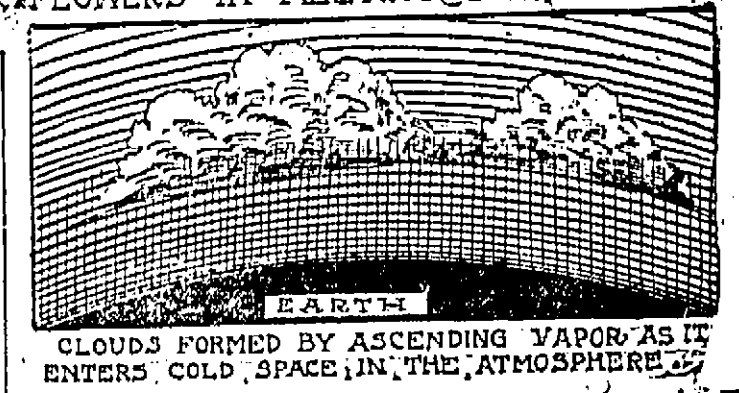

"In this way it is possible for our bit of water dust to go to the north pole and back, or to visit any and all portions of the world."

"The further away from the equator it gets the more likely it is to meet with not only cold but freezing air. When freezing air hits it in the form of water dust, or vapor, it falls in the form of snow. If it has already started on its journey to earth in the form of rain and passes through freezing air on its way down, the rain falls in the form of sleet or hail."

"A peculiar thing is that when water is frozen into the form of snow, the snow-drops, or crystals, are always six-sided in shape. If you go out after a snow-shower and search carefully, you will see that the snow flakes are not mere lumps of frozen water, but beautiful six-pointed crystal stars, so white and pure that when we want to speak of anything being spotlessly white, you say that it is 'white as snow.' Some of these crystals are simply flat slabs with six sides, others are stars with six rays or spikes springing from the center, others with six spikes each formed like a delicate fern. No less than a thousand different forms of delicate crystals have been found among snow-flakes, but though there is such a great variety, yet they are all built on the six-sided and six-pointed plan, and are all made of dazzlingly white by the reflection of light from the faces of the crystals and the tiny air-bubbles built up between them. This is why, you see, when the snow melts, you have only a little dirty water in your hand; the crystals are gone and there are no more air-bubbles held prisoners to act as 'looking-glasses' to the light. Hoar-frost is also made up of tiny water-crystals, and is nothing more than frozen dew hanging on the blades of grass and from the trees."

"But how about ice? It looks clear. But if you take a magnifying glass and look down on the surface of ice in the clear light of a sunny day, you will see there, too, a number of star-like forms. Only these look dark. In the center of each appears a bright spot. These imprisoned and flowers, which are seen when ice is melting, are our old friends the crystal stars turning into water, and the bright spot in the middle is a bubble of empty space, left because the watery flower does not fill up as much room as the ice of the crystal star did."

"Ice always takes up more room than water. That's why water pipes burst in severe cold weather. As the water freezes, it expands, or gets bigger, and, if in something tight, will crack it. The great spans of the Eads bridge crossing the Mississippi river and leading into St. Louis were subjected to ice-packing before they were connected up. For as the freezing ice-packing expanded, the enclosed metal parts of the spans were forced into smaller space and could be fitted more easily together. In the summer time the St. Louis bridge expands throughout its metal parts and consequently tightens up so that there is less rattle."

"Supposing the drop of water of which our little bit of water dust was a part had fallen to earth and had lodged upon the petal of a rose or the leaf of a tree—what, then, might become of it?"

"Trees and plants of all kinds are thirsty at times, and need water just the same as every living thing on earth does. All forms of vegetable life drink up water greedily, and each drop of water helps to give them life, life and by, when the plant gives up life, it absorbs no more water. In the case of vegetables, fruits and other forms of plant life which are eaten by the different representatives of the animal kingdom, the water they contain goes to give life to those who consume it. But wherever it goes or whatever changes it meets with, water is constantly 'travelling.' When rain strikes the earth it is either soaked up or started, back to the sea by means of brooks, streams and rivers. What is soaked up by the ground passes through the minerals of earth and mixes with them until it tastes like them. But it all gets to the sea some time or other. And, as the sea is the great dumping ground of the water-washed land, and as the sun-beams' kisses refuse to take up anything but pure water dust, the washings of earth are left in the sea, and those with what is already there give to the ocean its quality which we call 'salt.'"

"The surface of the earth is constantly changing. Every time there is a rain it takes off a little of the earth's surface here and leaves it there, or else carries it on to the sea. Sometimes an island in the sea sinks entirely out of sight, or the land of earth rises higher. Volcanoes, earthquakes and shocks inside the earth are constantly throwing up more surface, and the rains are constantly beating it down and carrying it back to the sea."

"Now, just a few words more. Uncle Joe will be through with his story of the rain-drop. Of late there has been a cry not only in New York state, but also here and there all over the United States against the cutting down of too many trees. Whether or not the trees draw the rain and therefore provide water for the land and its people is too deep for us to go into just at present. But, we do know that deserts are the places where there are the fewest plants, and it would seem that the good of mankind would best be served by a careful attention to the planting, growing and saving of trees in America."

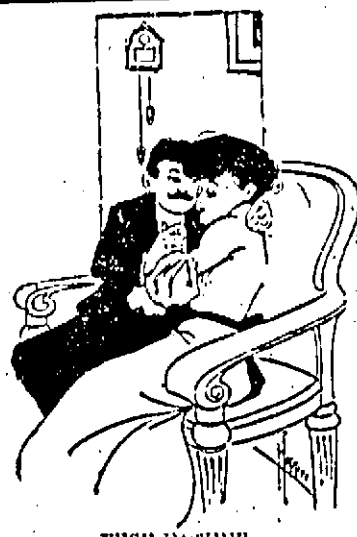

"WHAT is rain?" asked little Miriam, of Uncle Joe, the Story Teller. "It's a whole lot of water in drops," answered Uncle Joe. And then he returned to his book. "Yes, I know," persisted Miriam, "but I want to know how the water gets into little drops, and where they come from and where they go to."

WIFE FATHER. Mrs. Benjamin—You can't be near you, dear, when I can't touch you. Benjamin—You can't do it this time; my pocketbook is on the other side.

AN EXCITING SPIRIT. Mistress—Didn't I see the grocer's boy kiss you this morning, Martha? Martha—Yes, but he isn't to blame, ma'am. 'Twas the woman that set him the bad example.

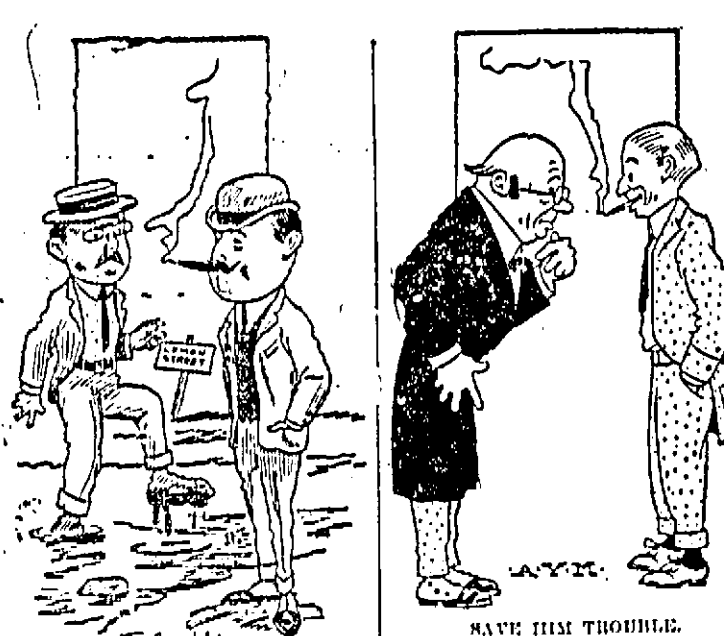

First Discovery of Coffee. The first discovery that was made of coffee in Mexico by the early Spanish settlers was through the action of the natives and mountain goats about the plants. The goats would rub their noses against the tree and wallow on their backs at the roots of the bush and prance and dance as a cat would over a ball of catnip. Upon examination, the bean was found to be, first of pleasant odor, and when crushed in the mouth, palatable. An experiment of boiling was made. The effect was so pleasant that the beverage became popular.

HALL AND GYMNASIUM FOR MILTON COLLEGE

Eight Thousand Dollars Raised by Subscription Yesterday for New Building.

Milton, Wis., June 18.—The feature of Commencement which was the unexpected event which culminated in subscriptions aggregating over eight thousand dollars for the erection of an auditorium and gymnasium building on the college campus. The need of such a building has been a subject of discussion for years, but the board of trustees and friends of the college had little hope of being able to secure funds for that purpose; therefore, no plan had been mapped out for securing them. On the morning of commencement the class of 1909, who, collectively, had not a thousand dollars, called on Dr. N. Ward Williams and asked him to go before the audience, when assembled, and announce that the class would pledge one thousand dollars for the erection of a building. After this announcement was made an opportunity was offered for others to contribute. The action of the class awakened great enthusiasm among those present and in thirty minutes over eight thousand dollars was pledged in sums ranging from ten to five hundred dollars, chiefly in sums of $25, $50, and $100. Among the contributors was the honored guest, Ambassador Thompson, who gave $500. Additional contributions are in sight and the ultimate success of the project is assured. The contributions were secured without any personal solicitation. Great credit is due the class of '09 for starting the ball rolling and to Dr. Williams for securing the financial contribution to it.

Hon. P. M. Green and wife gave a luncheon Thursday afternoon in honor of Ambassador Thompson. Those present were: Dr. N. W. Williams, Raymond Platt and Jackson, Prof. A. Whitford, President Deland, and Messrs. F. C. Dunn, B. H. Wells, Alfred Williams, and W. W. Clarke. The reception given by President and Mrs. Deland to the class, guests of honor and citizens, Thursday evening, was a charming social event and largely attended.

BODY OF AN INFANT IN ABANDONED VAULT

Mert J. Brennan Made An Unpleasant
Discovery in Court Back of His Barber Shop This Morning.

While emptying a basket of shaving papers and other rubbish into an old, condemned out-house fronting onto a court back of the barber shop and the Grand hotel this morning, Mert J. Brennan's attention was attracted to a parcel wrapped up in a towel and out covering of newspapers. On investigation, a human figure in about the third month of its development, was disclosed. District Attorney J. L. Fisher, Chief of Police George Ambloy, and Dr. G. C. Waigle were called to the scene and acting on the theory of an unlawful surgical operation, a careful inquiry is being made. The young woman in the case came here from Mineral Point, and was taken to the hospital for treatment about two weeks ago.

Will Summer Ever Come?

That's what hundreds of manufacturers and retailers of warm-weather raiment and summer goods in general have been asking themselves for weeks. The long, cold, rainy spring has been destructive to the hopes of many houses (both manufacturing and retailing) that rely on the early disposition of their warm-weather goods. Not even in the panic times of two years ago did we have so much merchandise to offer at sacrifice prices as we have to offer this week. Our stock needs reduction and so we will begin one of the biggest sales we have ever had—the sale that usually comes in July, forced now by extraordinary conditions at the time it will do our public the most good.

Breakfast Sense.
Overloaded Stomachs Make Poor Workmen.

Health is a state of normal, spiritual, mental and physical function. It has a definite physical symptom, the chemical equilibrium of the blood and organic secretions.

That is the assertion of authority. With the stomach overloaded with food that is hard to digest the blood is loaded with the acid and gases, the head aches, the nerves are shattered, bowels disordered, and ill health reigns supreme.

Can one be pleasant, industrious, capable in such conditions? The remedy is simple—wholesome food, open air exercise and right thinking. Often the right kind of breakfast means a splendid day's work with head and heart and hand.

A bad breakfast means a day of nasty temper and unsatisfactory results. Start the day right with E-C Corn Flakes or E-C Wheat Flakes served with good milk or cream. Always ready to serve crisp and delicious. If you haven't already eaten them—you've missed something good—order today and you'll not regret it.

Remember it is only the famous E-C process that makes E-C Corn Flakes and E-C Wheat Flakes so delicious and healthful.

Neb., is visiting Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Brown.
Mrs. Selmore and daughter, Clara, of Janesville are visiting Mr. and Mrs. W. Selmore.
Mrs. Eva Hailing spent the fore part of the week visiting her parents at Center.
H. C. Dettmer is treating his house in a coat of paint.

PLYMOUTH.
Plymouth, June 17.—Miss Edith Dornenbogen of Janesville was home from Friday until Monday.

GIRL TRAGEDY IS THE CAUSE

JEALOUSY LEADS TO SHOOTING OF THREE MEN, ONE DYING.

ACTOR IS HELD AS SLAYER

Young Men of Fairfield, Ill., Attack Actors Who Take Girls Home from Show and Fatal Use of Revolver Results.

Fairfield, Ill., June 18.—Jealousy led to the slaying of Charles F. Leininger, veterinary surgeon and secretary of the Wayne County Fair association, and the shooting of two other young men, one of whom may die, in this city.
Frank M. "Bonder" McCullough is dying at his home with a bullet through his stomach, the ball passing entirely through him.
Richard Sloan is shot through the thigh and may be crippled for life.

The triple tragedy is the outgrowth of a feud between several of the young men of the town and members of a traveling show—the Harrington theater company—who have been here since June 7.
Jealousy Causes Assault.
Jealous of the attentions the showmen have paid certain girls of Fairfield, one of their number, Herbert Orrin Pinnick, was assaulted a few nights ago after accompanying a young woman home from the show. He was waylaid by some unidentified person and severely beaten.

Wednesday night about 11 o'clock another young actor was accompanying a girl home and Pinnick, known as "Zeke," walked along not far distant to help protect his chum. Three young men attacked Pinnick in a shaded part of West Main street, almost on the doorstep of the county coroner's home, and began to beat him.

Three shots were fired and Pinnick, bruised and bleeding, ran into a private residence, where he hid until Sheriff Hozart came for him, giving himself up. He is in jail. He refuses to make a statement until his father comes.
Pinnick from Indiana.
Pinnick's home is in French-Lick, Ind., where his parents reside. He is 18 years of age. The inquest in the Leininger case was adjourned until the arrival of Pinnick's father from Indiana.

Dr. Leininger was single and about 25 years of age, and was a member of the firm of D. F. Leininger & Sons, produce merchants and well-known horsemen. McCullough is a son of Ellis McCullough and has often been in trouble here.

SENATOR ALDRICH CALLS A HALT

MOVES TO DELAY ACTION ON THE INCOME TAX QUESTION.

MAY SETTLE OTHERS FIRST

Says Schedule in the Tariff Bill Probably Will Be Completed by Monday—Brown, at "Risk of Panic," Quotes Roosevelt.

Washington, June 18.—Senator Aldrich offered a motion soon after the senate convened providing for delay in considering the income tax question, which had been placed on the calendar for action to-day. He asked that action be deferred until the tariff schedules are all completed.

This motion carries with it President Taft's program for the enactment of a resolution submitting the question of amending the constitution so as to permit congress to levy and collect a tax on incomes without regard to apportionment among the states. Senator Aldrich said he believes consideration of schedules may be finished by Monday and suggested that the postponement of the income tax and corporation tax measures be until that time.

Senator-elect William Lorimer arrived here last night ready to take oath of office as senator from the state of Illinois, if the Republican leaders agree that his vote is necessary to prevent a victory of the income taxers.

Democrats Hold Caucus.
The Democratic senators held a caucus concerning President Taft's program for the adoption of a tax on the earnings of corporations. The Republican members of the finance committee considered the question of coin and agreed upon recommendations to be made.

The duty on writing and typewriting paper, etc., as recommended by the committee, provoked a dispute between Senators Dristow and Smoot as to whether it raised or lowered the rates of the Dingley law. The Utah senator contended that it lowered and the Kansas that it increased the duty. An amendment was offered by Mr. Dristow lowering from three to two cents a pound and 15 per cent ad valorem the duty on this class of paper. The amendment was voted down 27 to 35, Republicans voting with the Democrats for the lower rate, were Haverfield, Dristow, Brown, Burkett, Burton, Clapp, Crawford, Cummins, Curtis and La Follette.

Duty on Post Cards.
By a viva voce vote the senate agreed to the committee amendment fixing the duty on illustrated post cards at 15 cents per pound and 25 per cent ad valorem. As stated by Mr. Smoot this was an increase from five cents a pound, or 325 per cent ad valorem, the very great increase being made necessary on account of the intense German competition, which was supplying the domestic market with post cards showing American views.

By a viva voce vote the senate sustained the finance committee in its proposed reduction of duties on window glass below the house bill and the Dingley law rates after rejecting by a vote of 25 to 52 an amendment offered by Senator Bacon for still lower rates. Of the Republicans only Mr. La Follette and Mr. Dristow voted with the Democrats on this amendment.

Brown Talks on Print Paper.

The print paper and wood pulp provisions were introduced by Senator Aldrich, who as chairman of the finance committee, proposed an amendment increasing the duty on print paper from one-tenth to two-tenths of a cent per pound, which he said equalled $1 a ton. The Dingley law placed the duty at $6 a ton and the house reduced it to $2 a ton.

Senator Brown of Nebraska immediately took the floor to speak on the subject.

Offering an amendment to place print paper on the free list Senator Brown declared that the paper industry did not need the protection of a duty. "At the risk of creating a panic," he said he would read from President Roosevelt's message to congress, in response to which the house had undertaken to investigate the wood pulp and paper business. He then proceeded to read from the message and in doing so received careful attention.

Snake Bites Reluctious Test.

New and Strange Cult in Kansas Uses Daring Method.

Hutchinson, Kan., June 18.—Practicing rites, more weird than those of the most fanatical Mormon sects, and cruelly more revolting than the most savage of the religious tests of the early Indians, a cult has sprung up near Hutchinson that is being closely watched by the authorities.

The law is powerless to interfere until some member of the sect dies a victim to its barbaric practices. It has been found out that just as the ancient Indians plunged their arms into buckets of boiling pitch to ascertain whether they were immune to pain so it is claimed the Snake Worshipers subject themselves to the bites of poisonous reptiles as a supreme test of grace.

LIFE OF TAFT THREATENED.

Armed Men Wait Behind Tree on White House Grounds.

Washington, June 18.—When President Taft left the White House yesterday for a ride in the country a tall, rawboned westerner stood in the shadow of one of the big maples and watched him. When the big touring car whirled out of sight the man walked up to the front door of the executive mansion and demanded admission.

When taken to the police station and searched a big revolver and a bolt filled with steel bullets were found in his possession. The man said he was Col. James Strickling of Rosbury, Ark., and that he was in Washington for a "purpose."

"I don't intend to divulge my business," he said. "I shall go back to the White House when I get out of this station house and wait for Mr. Taft to return."

The police surgeons examined the man and he was admitted to the St. Elizabeth Insane asylum.

The BLACK BAG

By Louis Joseph Vance

Copyright, 1908, by the Bobbs-Merrill Co.

CHAPTER XXII.

KIRKWOOD, turning the key in the lock, withdrew it and dropped it on the table. At the same time he swept into his pocket the money he had stolen of Calendar. Then he paused an instant, listening. From the captain's room came a sound of murmurs and scuffling. He crossed to the port locker forward.

He had his lid up in a twinkling and in another had lifted out the well-remembered black gladstone bag.

This seems to have been his first compound larceny.

As if stimulated by some such reflection, he sprang for the companionway, dropping the lid of the locker with a bang which must have been exceedingly edifying to the men in the captain's room. Whatever their emotions, the bag was muffled by a mighty kick, shaking the door, which, Kirkwood reflected, opened outward, was held only by the frailties of a lock and would not hold long.

Spurred onward by a storm of curses, Stryker's voice chanting inflated canophony with Calendar's, Kirkwood leaped up the companionway even as the second tremendous kick threatened to shatter the panels. Heart in mouth, a chill shiver of guilt running up and down his spine, he gained the deck, cast loose the painter, drew in his rowboat and dropped over the side, then, the gladstone bag nestling between his feet, sat down and bent to the oars.

And doubts assailed him, pressing close upon the ebb of his excitement—doubts and fears innumerable.

There was no longer a distinction to be drawn between himself and Calendar; no more could he esteem himself a better and more honest man than that accomplished swindler. He was not advised as to the Belgian code, but English law, he understood, made no allowance for the good intent of those caught in possession of stolen property. Though he was acting with the best of motives in the world, the law, if he came within its cognizance, would undoubtedly place him on Calendar's plane and judge him by the same standard. To all intents and purposes he was a thief, and thief he would remain until the gladstone bag with its contents should be restored to its rightful owner.

Voluntarily, then, he had stepped from the ranks of the hunters to those of the hunted. He now feared police interference as abjectly as did Calendar and his set of rogues, and Kirkwood felt wholly warranted in assuming that the adventurer, with his keen intelligence, would not handicap himself by ignoring this point. Indeed, if he were to be judged by what Kirkwood had inferred of his character, Calendar would let nothing whatever hinder him, neither fear of bodily hurt nor danger of apprehension at the hands of the police, from making a determined and savage play to regain possession of his booty.

Well (Kirkwood set his mouth sagaciously) Calendar should have a run for his money!

For the present he could compliment himself with the knowledge that he had outwitted the rogues, had lifted the jewels and probably two-thirds of their armament. He had also the start, the knowledge of their criminal guilt and intent and his own plans to comfort him. As for the latter, he did not believe that Calendar would immediately fathom them; so he took heart of grace and tugged at the oars with a will, pulling directly for the city and permitting the current to drift him downstream at its pleasure. There could be no more inexcusable folly than to return to the Quay Steen landing and possibly the arms of the despoiled boat owner.

At first he could hear crash after spluttering crash sounding duly muffled from the cabin of the Althea, a veritable devil's tattoo beaten out by the feet of the prisoners. Evidently the fastening was serving him better than he had dared hope. But as the black rushing waters widened between boat and brigantine the clamor aboard the latter subsided, indicating that Calendar and Stryker had broken out or been released by the crew. In ignorance as to whether he were seen or being pursued, Kirkwood pulled on, waiting in under the shadow of the quays and permitting the boat to drift down to a lonely landing on the edge of the dockyard quarter of Antwerp.

Here alighting, he made the boat fast and, soothing his conscience with the black rushing waters widened between boat and brigantine.

The black rushing waters widened between boat and brigantine.

a promise that its owner would find it there in the morning, strode swiftly over to the tram line that runs along the embankment, swung aboard an adventurous car and broke his first ten franc piece in order to pay his fare.

The car made a laborious progress up past the old Steen castle and the quay landing, Kirkwood sitting quietly, the gladstone bag under his hand, a searching gaze sweeping the water side. No sign of the adventurers rewarded him, but it was now all chance, all hazard. He had no more heart for confidence.

They passed the Hotel du Commerce, Kirkwood stared up at its windows, wondering.

A little farther on a disengaged fiacre, its driver alert for possible fares, turned a corner into the esplanade. At sight of it Kirkwood, inspired, hopped nimbly off the train car and signaled the cabby. The latter pulled up, and Kirkwood started to charge him with instructions, something which he did haltingly, hampered by a slight haziness of purpose. While thus engaged and at rest in the stark glare of the street lamps, with no chance of concealing himself, he was aware of a rising tumult in the direction of the landing and, glancing round, discovered a number of people running toward him. With no time to wonder whether or no he was really the object of the hue and cry, he tossed the driver three silver francs.

"Gare Centrale," he cried, "and drive like the devil!"

Diving into the fiacre, he shut the door and stuck his head out of the window, taking observations. A ragged fringe of silly rabble was bearing down upon them, with one or two gentlemen in the forefront and a giant, who might or might not be Stryker, a close second. Furthermore, another cab seemed to have been requisitioned for the chase. His heart misgave him momentarily, but his driver had taken him at his word and generosity, and in a breath the fiacre had turned the corner on two wheels, and the glittering reaches of the embankment, drive and promenade were blotted out, as if smothered with lampblack, by the obscurity of a narrow and tortuous side street.

He drew in his head the better to preserve his brains against further emergencies.

After a block or two Kirkwood picked up the gladstone bag, gently opened the door and put a foot on the step, pausing to look back. The other cab was pelting after him with all the enthusiasm of a hound on a fresh trail. He reflected that this mad progress through the thoroughfares of a civilized city would not long endure without police intervention. So he waited, watching his opportunity. The fiacre hurtled onward, the driver leaning forward from his box to urge the horse with lash of whip and tongue, entirely unconscious of his fare's intentions.

Between two streets the mouth of a narrow and darkeyed byway flashed into view. Kirkwood threw wide the door and leaped, trusting to the night to hide his stratagem, to luck to save his limbs. Neither failed him. In a twinkling he was on all fours in the mouth of the alley, and as he picked himself up the second fiacre passed. Calendar himself poking a round ball poll out of the window to hector his driver's capriciousness with promises of redoubled fare.

Kirkwood mopped his dripping forehead and whistled low with dismay. It seemed that from that instant on it was to be a vendetta with a vengeance. Calendar, as he had foreseen, was stopping at nothing.

At a dog trot he sped down the alley to the next street, on which he turned back—more solemnly—toward the river, debouching on the esplanade just one block from the Hotel du Commerce. As he swung past the scurried tables of a cafe whatever fears he had harbored were banished by the discovery that the excitement occasioned by the chase had already subsided. Beneath the parish awnings the crowd was laughing and chattering, eating and sipping its beer with complete unconcern, heedless altogether of the haggard and shabby young man carrying a black hand bag. Without attracting any attention whatever, indeed, he mingled with the strolling crowds, making his way toward the Hotel du Commerce. Yet he was not at all at ease. His uneasy conscience invested the gladstone bag with a magnetic attraction for the public eye. To enter it unconcealed in his hand furnished him with a sensation as disturbing as though its worn black sides had been stenciled "Stolen" in letters of flame. He felt it rendered him a cynosure of public interest, an object of suspicion to the wide, cold world; that the gaze which lit upon the bag traveled to his face only to spy thereon the brand of guilt.

For ease of mind presently he turned into a convenient shop and spent ten invaluable francs for a hand satchel big enough to hold the gladstone bag.

With more courage, now that he had the hateful thing under cover, he found and entered the Hotel du Commerce. In the little closet which served for an office, over a desk visibly groaning with the weight of an enormous and griny registry book, a sleepy, fat, bland and good natured woman presided, a benign and drawsy divinity of even tempered courtesy. To his misleading inquiry for M. Calendar she returned a cheerful permission to seek that gentleman for himself.

"Three flights, m'sieu," in the front. Suit 17 it is. M'sieu does not mind walking up?" she inquired.

M'sieu did not in the least, though by no strain of the imagination could it be truthfully said that he walked up those steep and redolent stairways of the Hotel du Commerce d'Antwerp. More literally, he flew with winged feet, springing each third potted step with a force that raised a tiny cloud of fine white dust from the carpeting.

Bravissimo, at last he paused at the top of the third flight. His heart was hammering, his pulses drumming like wild things; there was a queer constriction in his throat, a fire of hope in his heart alternating with the ice of doubt. Suppose she were not there! What if he were mistaken? What if he had misunderstood? What if Mulready and Calendar had referred to another lodging house? He pushed down the corridor to the door whose panels were the painted legend 17 and there knocked.

Believing that he overheard from within a sudden startled exclamation, he smiled patiently, tolerant of her surprise.

Turning with impatience as with a fever, he endured a long minute's wait. Missings were prompting him to knock again and summon her by name when he heard footfalls on the other side of the door, followed by a click of the lock. The door was opened grudgingly a bare six inches.

Of the alarmed expression in the eyes that stared into his he took no account. His face lengthened a little as he stood there, dumb, panting, staring, and his heart sank, down, deep down into a gulf of disappointment, weighted sorely with despair.

Then, of the two first to recover countenance, he doffed his cap and bowed.

"Good evening, Mrs. Hallam," he said, with a rueful smile.

Militiaman Stabbed Lad with Bayonet, Says Witness.

Paxton, Ill., June 18.—Introduction of testimony has begun in the trial of Joseph H. Klein of Chicago, a private in Company A, First regiment, Illinois National Guard, for the murder of Earl Nelson, 16 years old, who was stabbed to death at Kankakee on August 15, 1908, with a bayonet while trying to board a special train in which troops were going from Chicago to Springfield to quell the race riots.

F. R. Mitchell of Indianapolis, an employee of the Illinois Central railroad, testified that he was a witness to the stabbing of Nelson. He said he noticed Nelson on the third step of one of the cars. He saw a soldier come out of the car door, holding a bayonet in his hand. Witness said Nelson started to get off the car and was hanging to the hand rail when the soldier reached down and stabbed him with a bayonet. Nelson jumped to the ground and walked back to a flag shortly.
